

Administration, Alarmed Over NIRA Fate, Offers Concessions to Save It

WASHINGTON—The inner Administration council has become much alarmed over the fate of the NIRA in Congress. Before the Senate Finance Committee began its hearings, Administration leaders were confident that by making some minor concessions renewal of the Act would be relatively easy.

"Assistant President" Richberg, particularly, was convinced this was all that had to be done.

After witnessing the outbursts of resentment and hostility that broke about his head in the Committee and on the Senate floor, however, Democratic floor leaders rushed to the White House with warning that a real battle was on their hands.

Roosevelt was told that adoption of any NRA legislation was doubtful.

This, of course, would mean death to the Blue Eagle. Failure to renew its life by June 16 automatically ends its existence.

So to stem the rising tide of Senatorial opposition, Senator Pat Harrison secretly proposed to the Progressive block that they draw up a compromise bill.

"You strip the NRA of what you don't want," he said, "I am pretty sure we can get together."

"What about an anti-monopoly provision?" was demanded.

"Get together with Richberg," airily replied Pat. "You can work that out with him."

"We will work out nothing with Richberg," was the sharp rejoinder. "We don't care to have anything to do with him on this issue or any other."

The Progressives are now waiting the Administration's next move.

Help Ireland

Philadelphia's rookie Representative Michael J. Stack had a brilliant idea recently. So he sat down and wrote Roosevelt the following letter:

"Dear Mr. President:
"I am one of those strange creatures, a Democratic Congressman from Philadelphia. I am also an old-country Irishman, and I think it would be a rare pleasure to be allowed to have some hand in picking the Minister to the Irish Free State.

"I am always 100 per cent with you when you are right.

"Faithfully yours,
"Michael J. Stack"

F. D. R. declined Stack's offer of assistance, but he did invite him to "come up and see me some time."

The Philadelphian is having the reply framed so he can show it to the members of the 46th Ward Democratic Club.

Senate Speeches

The official reporters of the Senate, who transcribe the debate for the Congressional Record, have a shorthand speed of 250 words a minute. Average "take" is 180 words a minute.

Rhetorical Senator Ham Lewis of Illinois is most difficult to follow. He speaks rapidly, with involved phrases.

Others whose speech speed is over 200 words a minute are Bone of Washington, Clark of Missouri, Barkley of Kentucky, and Long of Louisiana.

Long is a difficult subject not only because of speed, but because of unusual hill-billy phrases he throws in, such as "There's something dead up the creek."

Two of the biggest men in the Senate are the most soft-spoken—Walsh of Massachusetts and Shipstead of Minnesota. Reporters are obliged to leave the front desk and sit close to them in order to hear.

Sensors King of Utah and Johnson of California are conspicuous for use of polysyllables.

OHIO GOVERNOR MAY BE IMPEACHED IN RELIEF WAR

While the Ohio legislature met at Columbus to take action on federal charges of "political corruption" in the Ohio relief administration, possible impeachment of Gov. Martin L. Davey (3) was threatened. Shortly after Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins (2) had placed Charles C. Stillman (1) in charge of Ohio's relief, Governor Davey swore out a warrant for Hopkins' arrest, charging criminal libel. Other photos show Marc J. Grossman (4) Cleveland, Cuyahoga county relief chairman, who turned to the offensive when Governor Davey assertedly tried to inject politics into relief administration; Attorney General John W. Bricker (5) who prepared to impanel a special grand jury to investigate charges against the governor, and Lieut. Gov. Harold Mosier (6) who would become governor if Davey were ousted. Hopkins acted on Roosevelt's order.

Strike Grasps Dayton Utility

on the part of the American Federation of Labor to gain control of the utility's operations.

Those on strike, it was said, are members of the International Brotherhood of Electric Workers No. 901. Picket lines were thrown up about the company plants and sub-stations, but no violence was immediately reported.

The situation was the most extraordinary witnessed in the heavily-Democratic house during this session. Leaders blandly ignored the White House attitude in the expectation that the house would vote three to one for a bonus bill, despite the president's opposition.

Custer, who is located in Columbus, was assigned with Deputy Marshal Forbes Lampman, to go to relief headquarters, now in charge of Charles C. Stillman, to guard the records kept there. They were sent to Stillman's office when it was reported Governor Davey intended to use the national guard to evict Stillman from his office.

FRANKLIN AND LUCAS HANDED RELIEF CLAIMS

Hoskins Declines to Discuss Report Four Witnesses Summoned

INQUIRY IS VOTED

Bricker Barred From Conducting Probe

COLUMBUS, March 19—U. S. District Attorney Francis J. Canny announced today the affidavits from Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins charging "political corruption" in connection with the administration of relief in Ohio, have been turned over to the prosecutors of Franklin and Lucas counties.

"I have nothing to say about the charges now," said Canny. "I will remain here until tomorrow and any investigation I may pursue will be entirely independent of action by the county prosecutors."

Subpoenas Reported

Franklin-co Prosecutor Donald Hoskins, who attended a conference of Canny and Attorney General John W. Bricker, refused to discuss a report that subpoenas have been issued for four persons to appear before the grand jury.

Mdve of Gingher Loses in Senate

COLUMBUS, Mar. 19—Denied authority by the Ohio Senate to call his own grand jury investigation, Attorney General John W. Bricker today considered turning over to individual county prosecutors to handle as they see fit affidavits in support of serious charges made by Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins against the Davey campaign committee.

These charges, already being sifted by the U. S. district attorney here for possible violation of federal laws, allege a "shake down" of individuals and firms selling goods to the Ohio relief organization. Hopkins has taken over complete control of relief activities in this state.

While the Ohio attorney general cannot conduct a grand jury probe himself without authorization from the governor or legislature, his advisers pointed out there is nothing to restrain him from turning the affidavits from Hopkins over to county prosecutors to act upon as they see fit.

Gingher Defeated

The Democratic-controlled Senate voted down, 16 to 12, a resolution by Sen. Paul Gingher (R) Columbus, for an investigation by the attorney general, after Governor Davey appeared before a joint session of the legislature "to give the people of Ohio and the nation the truth" after his battle with Hopkins.

A WARM WINTER

IN THE FILES of the United States weather bureau at Washington the winter of 1934-35 is at an end. For it seems the bureau, besides giving us the data on the weather before and after its arrival, likewise charts the seasons according to its own notions. Official winter in the bureau's calendar is December, January and February and even if the winds blow cold and the snow comes down in March, it's spring.

This being spring in the weather bureau, at least its experts can look backward upon departed winter and tell us what it was like. It turned out to be a very mild winter in almost all the United States. Between 85 and 90 per cent of the country had a winter warmer than normal. The small portion in the northeast that was colder than normal was not so cold as in the previous winter.

Some prophets who had based forecasts of a cold winter on movements of air masses were in for disappointment, for the masses actually brought warm weather. Cold polar air moved southward by way of Hudson bay over eastern Canada and centered over the northeastern United States. Turning clockwise, this mass helped to maintain prevailing winds from a southerly direction over the rest of the country, sweeping up warm tropical air from the Gulf of Mexico.

Moreover, according to the weather bureau there has been a remarkable trend to warm winters in the United States since the winter of 1917-18. Fifteen of these seventeen winters have been warmer than normal, when the country as a whole is considered, and about half of the fifteen show plus departures of temperature for nearly all sections of the country.

THE RELIEF ROLL

WERE the eight million inhabitant of the six New England states and the thirteen million inhabitants of New York to be receiving federal aid they would still be about one million less than the number the country over now on the relief rolls. The latest estimate places it in excess of twenty-two millions, or about one-sixth of the population of the country.

It is an aid to understanding of the meaning of the figures to picture the recipients of aid as brought together in one part of the land. Were they to take possession of the city of New York, only about one-third of them could find shelter there. This great army of the needy is three times as great as the population of New England.

Such is the story that comes from Washington as it is told in numbers of human units. What it means in dollars and cents is indicated by the statement that the cost of caring for these people calls for an expenditure of $5,000,000 a day. To measure it in terms of humiliation loss of ambition, and, perhaps, in even more serious ways, is a task no mere statistician may accomplish, and one that will await the longer view of the historian.

CONGRESS IN TRAINING

IT IS THE considered opinion of Representative James Mead of New York, with reference to the setting up of physical training equipment in the house quarters at Washington, that "our legislators need a gymnasium to keep themselves fit." Accordingly a good number of house members shortly will be in training with table-tennis, volley ball, wall exercisers, punching bags and other devices.

There is no suggestion in this as to what the house is preparing to do to the senate, or what the latter would do to the lower chamber if it could only find time for the physical development. The encounters of the two branches of congress will remain confined to another sphere, with the continued hope of the country that everything will be in the open, that rules will be enforced, fouls will be called and scores accurately tabulated in the public interest.

We pay ourselves a poor compliment when we lose heart because of the discovery that great minds are no smarter than ours.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

GYPSEY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance with all the world at her feet, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu. She despises her mother, Anica, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him. Just as Girtza notices Consuelo's ring, which she tells him she has stolen, the sheriff appears. He proceeds to haul the gypsies into court but Consuelo is no longer wearing the ring. When the judge's wife and another woman search her, Consuelo fights them savagely. Meanwhile Marcu comes into the court-room and announces he bought the ring. The town jeweler is summoned and admits selling Marcu the ring for $15.00. When the merchant declares it isn't worth a dollar, Consuelo is furious. The gypsies are dismissed from court and break camp hurriedly. Shortly afterwards the jeweler discovers he sold Marcu a $3.00 ring for $12.50. He had neglected to wear his glasses when he made the sale. Consuelo thinks Marcu tricked her and the ring's value and is bitter. She tempts the Dummy during a dance, he kisses her and Marcu appears. He tears Consuelo from the Dummy's arms and challenges him to wrestle for the girl. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 12

CONSUELO stood to the side. She did not urge on either one or the other. There was no exultation in her heart that they were fighting over her. Did they not know that she would have neither of them? Did they not know that she would never marry, that she was going to dance; that men no longer mattered; that only the palace on the top of the high hill counted; that life would never be complete until she had danced in the palace? Attainment! That would not cheat her as men had done. Attainment! That was the only real thing.

"Petru," she called, her voice loud above the noise of the cheers and the fight, "Petru, play again on your flute. I will dance."

Petru put his flute to his lips and began to play.

Ah, what new thing was this? The gypsies looked at the girl. Why was she dancing as if she cared not at all that two men were fighting for her? At first they divided their attention and then slowly again the circle drew about her, for what gypsy can resist a dancing girl or the sound of a flute? But yet again what gypsy can resist a good wrestling match? Yet it was true that men could wrestle any time and it was not true that anyone else could dance as this girl was dancing. Again they were tapping their hands and beating their feet in the dust and the circle closed about her and the two men were left on the outside of the circle. No one was watching them and it did not matter which one outwrestled the other.

The girl noticed the closed circle and she laughed and danced as she had never danced before. But the laugh faded and unknowingly she was a little sad that dancing had won this contest. When finally she had finished she ran away fast and went alone into the woods and flung herself upon the ground and buried her face in her hands and cried. It was hard to forget the Dummy's arms around her.

Hot summer days came in monotonous procession and it was still the talk of the camp how Consuelo had scorned the fighting men and had taken all her love away from them. Afterward no one could understand why he had watched her dancing instead of a good matched contest between well muscled men.

And it made Marcu's blood boil and he wanted to lay his hands on her and beat her and make her say again, "Now is the time to tell you I love you."

But the Dummy laughed to himself. The fight had been madness on his part, but it pleased him the way the men patted him on the back now and how Merla turned her saucy black eyes upon him admiringly. So he laughed and returned her look but did not take her seriously, but kept at his work. Into his painting crept a new boldness, a new sureness to the sweep of his brush that made more definite the beauty he knew so well how to create. Others of the gypsies would sit and pose for him and from the money he made selling the pictures he was able to buy more oils and canvas.

Consuelo was like a mad one these days. First she was laughing and happy and then she was sullen and angry and cursed at the men and jeered at the married women and quarreled with the other gypsy girls. She slapped Merla's face for turning her black eyes on the Dummy and it was Girtza's long whip that stopped their fighting. She turned the camp topsy-turvy with her temper and the women yelled at her and the young men followed her about.

She would not speak to Marcu. When he was about she flirted outrageously with the men and did not care whether they were married or not. Loud angry words followed her and she flung back words just as loud and angry.

There were no more times now when she could pour out her confidences to the Dummy as she had in the past. Friendship without passion as before could not be resumed between them. There was no one to whom the girl could turn and open the gates of her turbulent self and she was as restless as a caged lioness.

Girtza watched her and held back his whip when he might have beaten her. "Now is the time she must be married." And he turned his eyes upon Marcu for him to make his offer—but he did not.

This afternoon it was hot—hot, it seemed that the summer would never pass. Consuelo went to the Dummy.

"Come, you have money in your purse, let us go into the town and buy cold drinks. I could drink and drink and drink and not be satisfied."

Obviously he laid down his work and followed her. As they walked she did not talk and he could not.

They approached the railroad tracks on the outside of the town. On the siding stood a private car, the waves of heat rising above it, blurring the outline. A card table was set up on the ground in the shade of the car and three men were playing cards around it and drinking tall cool drinks.

Consuelo paused, then tapped the some flowers in appreciation of her kindness which I was low in spirit and in health in the hospital. All I told the doctor was that his bill was outrageous, and said nothing to the good padre who called on me.

And I'll bet these answers, although purely imaginary, would hit about 99 percent of us right between the eyes.

No, parson, we are not ungrateful; we are just negligent and forgetful. We fully appreciate all our many blessings and opportunities and are grateful to Him and to our fellowmen for all good things that come to us, but I guess we have become so used to them as matter-of-fact, every-day bounty that is due us that we fail to express ourselves as we should. But hereafter, now that you've called our attention to it, we are going to do better and we'll try every day to express our appreciation in some manner. And here's where we begin: "Thanks for calling our attention to our short-comings."

"HOME, GEORGE!" "Thumbing" rides along the highway is not always a sure and certain means of transportation between two given points within a definite period of time.

Two young gentlemen, representing the advertising and mechanical departments, respectively, of this great family journal, left here in high spirits Saturday afternoon to see Dover—the old home town—play in the final game of the district basketball tournament. They returned to Circleville about 10 p. m. the same day.

I've heard a rumor that they were left afoot somewhere enroute and that persistent "thumbing" for a ride in any direction was without

"You like your fortunes told?"

Dummy's arm and pointed.

"I'll make money there," and motioning the youth to wait for her, she walked toward the men.

As she came close her white teeth flashed in a smile. She stepped into the shade.

"You like your fortunes told?" she asked, eyes sparkling.

"Well, look what's here!" "A gypsy!"

"What can you tell us?"

"I tell the past, the future, your loves, your hates—I tell all."

"Just like a woman. Never could keep a secret."

She stepped closer to the man who spoke.

"Cross my palm with silver, white man, and I shall tell you all that you want to know." Smiling up at him.

"Money first, always money first. That proves my point that women are all the same."

"Go on, Doug, be a sport."

Doug took a dollar from his pocket and held it out to the gypsy.

"Now listen here, young lady," he said, "I want you to tell me a lot of good things, but don't you dare tell me I'm going to fall in love—the last time cost me plenty."

The slim fingers took the dollar eagerly and touched the outstretched hand.

"Wheel! Don't do that!" Doug drew his hand away. "I'm frightfully afraid of women," he told her.

"I can't tell your fortune unless I hold your hand."

Doug put his hands behind him.

"You know I don't think I'd be so afraid of you if I had a little kiss first."

"This isn't New York," one of the others admonished.

"Well, I've never yet met a girl who refused to kiss me," Doug admitted blandly, "after I've given her money—not just a dollar, perhaps, but then a dollar is a dollar."

"Listen, girlie, don't pay a bit of attention to him. Why don't you tell me your fortune? I won't ask for a kiss first—" the man stressed the last word.

"You forgetting your wife, Bill?" One of the trio, a tall, fair haired man, spoke.

"Go on, just because you're the only lucky one, don't rub it in," Bill retorted.

"Well, then, if I'm the lucky one, I ought to have mine told first. How about it, gypsy girl?"

"My name's Consuelo," she offered.

"All right, Consuelo, will you tell mine?"

Editorial Of The Day

CRIME DOES NOT PAY

(Columbus Dispatch)

This oft-heard assertion is borne out every day and may be seen in hundreds of ways. One may even step over to the institution in W. Spring St. and see some 4000 examples of it there. Yet, seemingly, there is one born every minute who thinks he is especially endowed to beat the rule.

In an effort to impress the everlasting verity upon as widespread an audience as possible MGM Pictures is producing a series of shorts, each built around an actual crime. Each picture will show that the cards are stacked against the criminal from the start.

The first of this series is a picture with a vital, compelling message. Such pictures aren't exactly pleasant in their complete sense, nor do they have happy-endings, but they pack a wallop convincing as an uppercut from Dempsey.

The youth who has illusions about the glamour of crime will get a sermon which will help to keep him on the straight road. MGM is making a worthy contribution to a fine cause in helping put across the fact that crime does not pay.

Blood Pressure Variations Resemble Graph of Stocks

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE SPOKE THE other day of the mistake that patients frequently make in regarding a fall of blood pressure as necessarily a sign of improvement or a rise of blood pressure as necessarily a sign that the condition is getting worse. It is a mistake to regard blood pressure as a fixed thing. The blood pressure varies in many different ways; in fact, it is constantly fluctuating and a chart of a person's blood pressure hour by hour through the day, every day in the year, would look like the chart of the range of an active stock on the stock market.

The most notable variation in blood pressure is that in the course of life, from infancy to old age. The general trend of blood pressure is to go up as age advances. In children of the age of 2, blood pressure is usually 75 to 90. In a mature individual of 20, it is usually about 120. From then on, it is liable to increase gradually, about 10 points for every decade of life, until it reaches 150 to 160 at about the age of 60, when it is likely to decline.

Variations of pressure during the day show, in a healthy person, that the systolic pressure in the morning is about 160, rises to about 120 at 9 o'clock, falls a little during the afternoon, rises again in the early evening, and if a quiet evening is spent, it falls slowly to about 100, remaining that way through the night.

Posture has some influence on blood pressure and is lower in the recumbent position.

Unaccustomed rest has long been known to be a reducer of blood pressure. Thus laboring men with pressures between 160 and 200, on entrance to the hospital showed a considerable fall after a few days in bed.

Meals influence blood pressure to some extent. After a meal, independent of the time of day, there is a constant fall of pressure.

If one were to take 1,000 people and take their blood pressure every day at the same time, throughout the year, and make a graph of the average of these pressures, it would be found that it was highest about the first of January, became appreciably lower—10 to 15 points—by June, stayed that way through the summer, and then gradually rose through the fall again to the high point in January. The lesson of this, according to an eminent physician of my acquaintance, is always to start treating your high blood pressure patients on the first of January and to dismiss them on the first of August.

We see from all these things that it is entirely an erroneous idea to regard blood pressure as a fixed thing. It is far more changeable than the temperature of the body or than the pulse rate.

Poems That Live

LAUS INFANTUM

In praise of little children I will say

God first made man, then found a better way

For women, but His third way was the best.

Of all created things the loveliest And most divine are children.

Nothing here

Can be to us more gracious or more dear.

And though when God saw all His works were good

There was no rosier flower of babyhood.

'Twas said of children in a later day

That none could enter Heaven save such as they.

The earth, which feels the flowering of a thorn,

Was glad, O little child, when you were born;

The earth, which thrills when skylarks scale the blue,

Soared up itself to God's own Heaven in you;

And Heaven, which loves to lean down and to glass

Its beauty in each dewdrop on the grass—

Heaven laughed to find your face so pure and fair,

And left, O little child, its reflex there!

—William Canton

Mrs. Adrian Yates Elected President of Monday Club

Mrs. Adrian Yates, E. Main-st, is the new president of the Monday club for the coming year. She and her corps of officers were elected at the club's regular session, last evening.

Other officers, named during the session in charge of the president, Mrs. Hildeburn Jones, were Mrs. Fred Griner, first vice president; Mrs. R. F. Lilly, second vice president; Miss Margaret Rooney, recording secretary; Mrs. Barton Deming, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, treasurer; Miss Mary Wilder, librarian, and Miss Alice Ada May, Miss Gretchen Moeller and Mrs. G. H. Adkins, program committee.

The nominating committee, which presented the slate of officers, was comprised of Mrs. T. W. Brown, Mrs. Orion King and Miss Jeannette Rowe.

Following the business meeting, the program was in charge of Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, chairman of the psychology division. It consisted of two papers. The first one was on "Personality and Social Adjustment" and was given by Mrs. Anna Chandler.

She said in part: "People differ, not only in intelligence and efficiency but in an intangible something referred to as a personality. Personality refers not to any particular sort of activity, but to an attractive something which pervades one's every contact with people. Personality then, is the quality of one's total behavior."

"One's physique, biological make-up, intelligence, limitations and temperament all contribute to one's personality. Environment may obstruct or aid the development of one's personality."

"One must adjust oneself to the social environment with its demands and its oppositions, or adjust the environment to oneself. The development of one's personality consists largely, in a series of adjustments. The more intelligent person demands more of environment and more is demanded of the person. A person of limited intelligence is likely to be lacking in tact and sympathy because he does not understand what is going on in a social group and cannot put himself in their place."

We are living in a period of emphasis on intelligence and personality.

Mrs. Clark Hunsicker's paper on "Psychology and Leisure" was read by Mrs. C. C. Watts, in the absence of Mrs. Hunsicker.

She said in part: "Social and industrial upheaval or revolution have been thrust upon us almost overnight, showing that we are to have more time to live our lives as we please. As we have been in the past, work-wise, in the future we shall grow leisure-wise."

"Civilization demands that we shall cultivate the interests, powers and delights that should be our privilege. As the poet Masefield said, 'The Hours that make us happy make us wise.'"

"As yet, many of us seem not quite ready to welcome this open time, but as Aristotle long ago pointed out, 'The end of labor is to gain leisure.'"

"Leisure time is opening the way to release self-expression." We should learn to use our leisure for the highest development of both brain and body.

"The time will come when we shall realize that a 'Main Street' which has no place where adults can foregather to keep their minds alive and growing is bound to be a place of intellectual barrenness and emotional mediocrity. Leisure is the most valuable product of modern mechanism and modern waste of power and material in social organization. Public inquiries have been made into the production of industry but leisure is still unconsidered."

PATTERN 9082

A shirtwaist effect for the young girl is both striking and appropriate—especially when the fashion is introduced by means of a clever yoke. ATHLETIC CHIEF ASSAILED

THREATENED BOLT OF AKRON SCHOOLS SEEN AS DANGEROUS

COLUMBUS, March 19 — With charges of "political chicanery" laid at his door, H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic association, today attempted to pour oil on the troubled waters he stirred up yesterday when he refused to allow some of the eight Class A high school basketball finalists to "seed" positions in the statewide tournament here this week-end.

As a result, Akron North and Akron West were paired to meet in the first round, making the third time in the last three years that teams from the Akron district had been forced to meet in first round games and eliminate each other. Immediate resentment was expressed by the Akron coaches and the cry of "political chicanery" was raised by principals of five high schools there.

To Enter Protest

The quintet of school officials, J. W. Flood of Akron West, Hugh R. Smith of Akron North, A. D. Ladd of Akron Garfield, C. J. Bowman of Akron Butcher and J. Ray Stine of Akron Central, were to call on Townsend today to make a formal protest, and threaten to withdraw not only from the tournament but from the high school association.

However, Townsend already had moved to right the condition. He communicated with Lima South and Columbus Central, who were paired to meet each other to determine whether they would trade places with an Akron team in the first round. However, in event of winning the two Akron teams would meet each other in the second round, so only a one round advantage would be gained.

It was also doubtful whether Lima South or Columbus Central would care to take the chances of cutting their tournament life by meeting an Akron team in the first round. Townsend said he expected definite word from South and Central before this afternoon. To the charges of political chicanery within the high school association, Townsend said:

"That's very interesting but I don't believe I'll comment."

He, however, said he would "be pleased to meet with the Akron school officials."

Townsend said the present situation was "regrettable." It resulted when one of the Lima teams moved to "seed" cities with two teams represented despite previous instructions that no "seeding" would be allowed. Four schools, those from Akron and Lima, voted in favor of "seeding" while three others opposed it. Dayton Stivers' representative was absent and Townsend voted for that school against "seeding." It deadlocked the issue and then Townsend ruled that there would be no "seeding" in effect casting two votes. The fact that Stivers later approved Townsend's vote for it failed to detract from the dispute.

Express Sorrow

"I'm sorry about the whole thing," explained Townsend, "But I believe I was right. In the first place, I shouldn't have allowed any discussion of 'seeding' at all, inasmuch as the rules clearly stipulated that there would be no 'seeding.' In the second place, I shouldn't have tried to 'carry the ball' for Dayton Stivers."

Townsend promised that the boards of control of the association would consider plans for a different method of pairing teams at its meeting next Saturday but admitted that "it was like locking the barn after the horse was stolen."

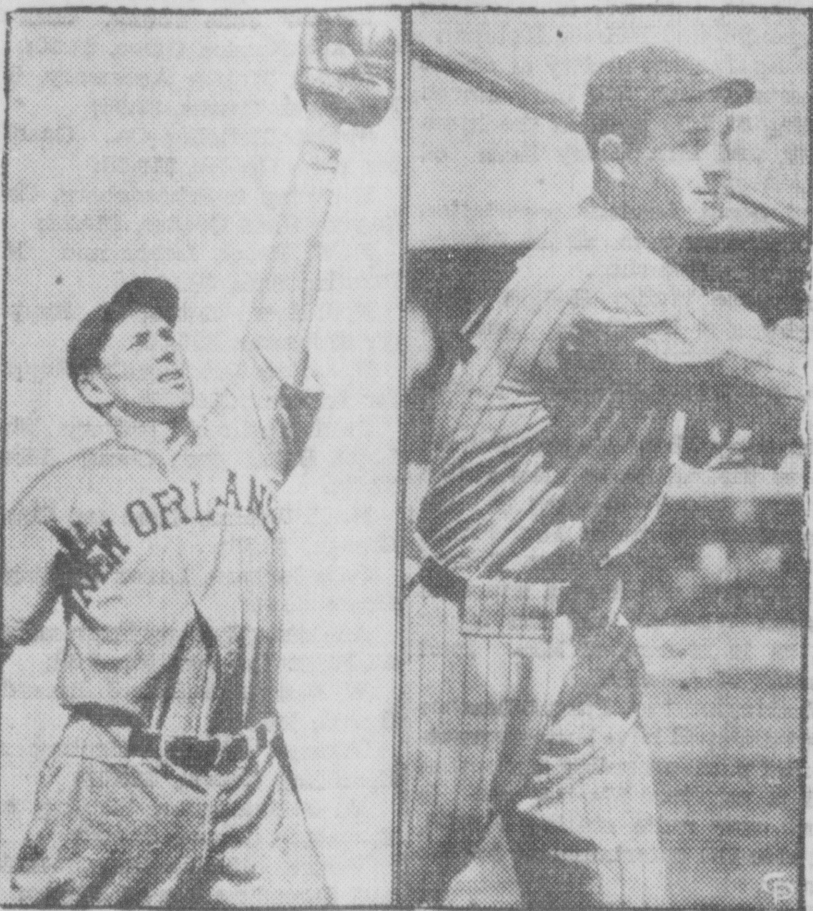

Sox Rookie Is Hot

Ray Radcliff

Gift to the major leagues from Kiowa, Okla., Ray Radcliff, White Sox hopeful, is regarded as most likely to stick. The right-fielder who hit .335 for Louisville last year, has been going great in the Sox training camp in Pasadena, Cal.

APPENDICITIS HITS INDIAN HOPES

Roy Hughes

Bill Knickerbocker

With star Shortstop Bill Knickerbocker recovering from an appendicitis operation in New Orleans, pennant chances of the Cleveland Indians are regarded as slim unless Roy Hughes, left,

sensational New Orleans recruit, can fill in for Knick. Hughes, 22-year-old Cincinnati sandlot product, has shown up well in training camp, and is one of the fastest men on the squad.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

What Of "Seeding"?

The advisability of "seeding" teams in a basketball tournament has never before been proved any more than in the last month; we have in mind the county tournament, and more recently, the state tournament. * * * As a result of failure to "seed" teams in the latter meet two Akron schools, both with strong quintets, are forced to meet in the first round just as Ashville and New Holland, undoubtedly the best drawing cards in the county, were thrown against each other in the first round of the county meet * * *

Too Much Townsend

Much disgust has been expressed by Akron school heads as a result of the draw and threats have been heard that "We will withdraw." We don't believe the schools, North and West, will quit the tournament but just what might result can easily be seen * * * The North coach was very angry at the tactics of "Kingfish" H. R. Townsend of the state athletic commission who cast the two deciding votes on the "seeding" question. The vote stood 4 to 3 for "seeding" with Dayton Stivers having no representative at the meeting. Townsend voted for Stivers and balloted against "seeding" then as athletic commissioner he was enabled to cast a ballot to break the tie resulting in the vote against "seeding" * * *

Benefit For "Tubby"

Old classmates, other members of the Muskingum alumni and many friends took part in a recent "benefit" evening of sports given for George "Tubby" Vlerbome, former Circleville high school athlete, who is confined in a Starko sanatorium for probably a year's treatment. He became afflicted while coaching at Dalton high school. Basketball games were conducted between two all-star alumni squads and the present freshman and varsity teams. Vlerbome, son of Mrs. Channing Vlerbome, E. Main-st., is a nine letter-man at Muskingum having three years in each basketball, football and track * * *

Baseballers Practice

The high school baseball squad under the direction of Coach Pete Herberholz had its first "official" workout on the utilities field Monday evening. The battery-men have been working out for quite a while but the infielders and outfielders have just started their chores * * *

IRISH GRAPPLER CLIMBS LADDER

NEW YORK, March 19—A new heavyweight wrestling champion loomed as a possibility in the near future here today.

Dan O'Mahoney, big Irish bone-crushing importation, held the wrestling spot-light today after his quick victory over former champ Jim Browning at Madison Square Garden last night. Browning was pinned in 22 minutes, 31 seconds. O'Mahoney made use of his vaunted "Irish Whip" to down his rival, putting behind him another rung of the ladder leading to the top of the wrestling world. The Irishman, who is a native of London, the "perfect Greek."

CHAMPION TO FACE GERMAN

Willing to Go to Europe Providing $300,000 Is Placed In U. S. Bank

BERLIN, March 19 — Europe may finally witness its first heavyweight championship fight in recent boxing history next August if plans of Walter Rothenberg, Hamburg promoter, who staged the Max Schmeling-Steve Hamas battle materialize.

Rothenberg announced today that Max Baer had accepted his $300,000 offer to risk his crown against Schmeling, probably in London. Paris is also being considered as a site, but it is felt that Berlin would be impractical as a battlefield because of the difficulty in getting $300,000 in foreign exchange out of the country.

Baer wants his $300,000 posted in an American bank before the fight.

His participation is contingent on his beating the winner of the Madison Square Garden tournament in a scheduled June fight.

BAA NOTES

By GILSON WRIGHT

For the first time in several years, the Buckeye conference will decide championships in tennis and golf this spring.

Miami, Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan each will participate in both sports, while Ohio university will have a tennis team but no golf team. Marshall will not be represented in either sport.

Cincinnati university's baseball team will make a southern jaunt this spring. The Bearcats, after opening with a Buckeye opponent, Ohio Wesleyan, on April 13 will make a five-day trip into Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia. Georgia Tech is one of the teams to be met.

While Coach Frank Wilton is busy with his spring football practice, Len Fertig, former Miami grid and baseball star, will take the Miami diamond squad through its early paces. Wilton will direct the team after the spring grid program is ended.

Dana King's sudden resignation as head gridiron coach at Cincinnati comes unexpectedly in Buckeye circles. Even the Cincinnati Bearcat, student newspaper, is puzzled at the prospect of a coach resigning his position just after he had led his team to the championship, as King did in football last fall. His successor will be Russ Cohen, formerly an assistant at Vanderbilt.

Down at Marshall college they're singing the praises of Carroll Coleman, sophomore who is slated to fill the shoes of "Lefty" Belcher as the Herd's ace pitcher this spring. Marshall won the Buckeye championship in baseball a year ago.

MIZE'S HIT WINS

TAMPA, Fla., Mar. 19—The Cincinnati Reds today held a 6 to 5 victory over the Toronto club after an exhibition game but the winning run was not scored until two were out in the last half of the ninth. However, big Johnny Mize poked a stinging liner over second to end the game. The Reds loaned Toronto two pitchers for the game, Lee Grissom and Junie Barnes, the latter with a puzzling underhand delivery even though he is a south-paw.

TREGO CANDIDATE FOR BEREA BOOTS

COLUMBUS, March 19—Capital university today had five candidates for the "Berea Boots," symbolic of athletic prowess at the local school.

Dana Swinehart, three-sport letterman from Glenford, will make the award soon. Candidates are Fred Heischman of New Albany, Paul Schellhase of Youngstown, Ellsworth Trego of Commercial Point, Paul Long of Waldo and Eldon Cooperdier of Petersburg, W. Va.

The "Berea Boots" have been handed down to the best athlete of the junior class since they were first discovered in the Berea oil field in 1914.

GOTHAM TO SEE DETROIT NEGRO

NEW YORK, Mar. 19 — Joe Louis, negro heavyweight who has come along at a rapid pace since capturing the amateur 175-pound title last April, will be paraded in action before local fans three times next summer, it was learned today.

The assurance comes from Mike Jacobs, who disclosed he has signed the sensational newcomer for a trio of bouts in the metropolis, against available opponents who will venture into the ring with Louis is not known now.

LEFTY LEE FIND

NEW ORLEANS, Mar. 19 — Walter Johnson, manager of the Cleveland Indians and himself one of the greatest pitchers in baseball's history, gloated today over the performance of two of his hurlers, Clint Brown and Thornton Lee, who held the Pelicans to one hit in nine frames recently. After watching the moundsmen work out yesterday, the word went the rounds that Johnson was counting on Lee to win between 15 and 20 games for the Tribe this season.

FORCING THE STRONG HAND TO LEAD

RECENTLY there is an advantage in having the opening lead come up to tenaces, instead of going through them. When partners have both shown strength, as West and his partner had done with today's hand, there may be an advantage in having the single strong opponent make the opening lead, up to the lesser strength of the second member of the declaring side. This probably accounts for West's unusual bidding.

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; West doubled; East, 2-Clubs, his lowest three-card suit, as he had to respond and could not bid 1-No Trump on so dubious a heart stop as the K of hearts. Dummy's Ace won. Three rounds of trumps luckily pulled all opposing clubs, leaving dummy with a long trump. Not until then did West realize that his partner had held only three clubs, and that it was fortunate for the declaring side that opposing trumps had been divided 3-3.

East's K of clubs won the fourth trick played, taking his last trump. He led his lowest heart. South's Q won the trick. When North showed out South knew that the declarer held the missing J of hearts, but he might not hold the missing Ace of diamonds. South took the second defensive trick for his side, with the Ace of spades, then dummy was put in with a heart, as the exposed hand had nothing left to lead except diamonds or the long trump.

The 2 of diamonds was led from dummy and the declarer was in with the missing Ace of diamonds, capturing South's lone Q. If South had not been wise enough to take his Ace of spades when in, dummy's lone spade would have been discarded on the declarer's J of hearts, giving the declaring side a small slam, without mentioning the remarks which North might have addressed to his partner had the latter allowed East to make a small slam against an opening bid.

Had North and South known that opponents were going to fulfill a game contract at a minor suit, it would have paid well to bid 5-Spades, as neither side was vulnerable. Going down three tricks doubled, costing 450 points, would have been less expensive than giving opponents a game.

FOUR STATES FACING 'FED' RELIEF PROBE

Funds Withheld From Idaho, Maryland, Tennessee; "Chiselers" Hit

WASHINGTON, March 19—A concentrated drive on relief "chiselers" and on possible graft and corruption in connection with handling of federal relief funds was under way today following the clash between Federal Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio.

While Hopkins maintained a strict silence on Gov. Davey's warrant charging him with criminal libel, it was learned that federal investigators are at work in other states, checking on "chiseling" and trying to determine whether there is evidence of corruption.

Funds have been withheld from Idaho, Maryland and Tennessee because their legislatures have not made provision for the state to assume what Hopkins considers a fair share of the relief burden.

But all the other states including Ohio, have received their March allotments.

Attacks 'Chiselers'

A drive by Pennsylvania authorities against alleged "chiselers" on relief rolls has been started, centering in Pittsburgh. Though it is a state action, the federal administration is keeping a close eye on the situation. Pennsylvania's relief load jumped from $18,894,738 in December to $22,500,000 in January, approximately $3,600,000 in February, and slightly under that figure in March.

An investigator for the FERA assigned to western states has been in Idaho the last few days.

There Gov. C. Ben Ross was told by Administrator Hopkins, in a letter two months ago, that Idaho must take steps to assume a share of the relief burden. The FERA has allotted more than $4,000,000 to Idaho in the last year, while the state had provided only approximately $250,000, officials stated. The legislature adjourned recently without taking any steps for the state to provide its quota of relief, approximately one-fourth of the monthly amount. Idaho's relief load in January was $1,065,118.

In the Ohio controversy, Hopkins' aides repeated that any prosecution of the charges of corruption against Gov. Davey's campaign lieutenants was up to the state and county prosecutors.

Hopkins said the evidence collected by his investigators was forwarded to Attorney General John W. Bricker and to the county prosecutors of Franklin and Lucas counties, of which Columbus and Toledo are the county seats.

Relief List Jumps

The number of persons on relief in Ohio increased from 1,192,509 in December to 1,234,363 in January, the latest figures available at relief headquarters.

STEELE IMPROVING

Arthur Steele, Watt-st., who has been very ill at his home for a number of weeks was reported improving, Tuesday.

Film Star to Wed?

Louise Henry Conrad Nagel

Louise Henry, 21-year-old film actress, and Conrad Nagel, screen star, who was divorced in Mexico last year, are deeply in love, according to mutual friends in Hollywood. Miss Henry, a native of Virginia, arrived in Hollywood less than a year ago. They met while working together on a movie lot.

TWO ATTORNEYS FACING CHARGES

COLUMBUS, March 19—Disbarment proceedings have been brought in Franklin-co courts against Attorney Simeon Nash and Maurice Kessler. Embezzlement was charged against the former lawyer while the latter was charged with altering a promissory note.

100 FAMILIES OFF AID ROLLS

TROY, March 19—More than 100 families have been removed from relief rolls and the prosecuting attorney is preparing charges to be filed against them as "chiselers". The warrant will read: obtaining federal money under false pretenses.

CHARGE WITHDRAWN

Dennis Moseley, of near Ironton, was arrested by Sheriff Charles Radcliff for abandoning his wife, but was released when the charge was withdrawn.

LECTURED, FREED

Addie Lucas, negro, was lectured by Mayor W. B. Cady then released on charges of intoxication.

GEN. JOHNSON TO "ABOLISH" HUEY, FATHER

Wants All On Record Before Getting Rid of Enemies of Air-Waves

CHICAGO, March 19—General Hugh S. Johnson, late of the NRA, will crack down with finality on the "lies and insinuations" of Senator Huey S. Long and the Rev. Fr. Charles E. Coughlin, but at present the general said he is biding his time.

Veering momentarily from a polite and pedantic speech at Northwestern university last night Gen. Johnson promised, at a future date, once and for all, to "dispose" of his arch-enemies of the air waves, whom he broadly termed not really worthy of his title.

"I have yet to answer their lies and insinuations because I want them to put it all on record," he said. "They are marching toward the sound of the wrong guns and trying to lead after them every faint or disappointed heart that they can delude or inflame by their political hypocrisy."

Asked what "we can do to get rid of Huey Long," Johnson replied: "Laugh him to death."

In answering questions from the audience, Gen. Johnson insisted that his recent speech assailing Father Coughlin was not inspired by President Roosevelt.

Administration of the National Recovery act, and not exactly NRA itself, "is dead as a dodo bird," the general declared, and as it stands NRA should be abandoned.

libel action against Hopkins and dared him to come to Ohio to stand trial, flayed the federal relief administrator as "a base and foul character assassin who has done me grave and unforgivable wrong."

After defeating the Gingham resolution, the Senate adopted another offered from the Democratic side for a legislative investigation of all phases of Ohio's bitter relief controversy.

Davey, in his address to the joint session, urged an investigation "by able and impartial counsel," promising full cooperation "in the conviction this investigation will uncover a situation that will shock the people of Ohio."

While Bricker as attorney general is by statute the legal counsel of the governor, he is a Republican and mentioned as the potential Republican opponent of Davey in the next election. Davey has made a practice of seeking legal advice from counsel other than the attorney general.

Willingness of the Democrats for a legislative probe failed to satisfy the Republican senate minority, who shouted "white wash" when their amendment to make the investigating committee bipartisan was voted down. Six Democrats and four Republicans will comprise the committee.

But Democrats joined Republicans in the adoption of a resolution giving assurance to the federal government that Ohio will raise its share of relief revenue promptly. It is two million dollars a month, the federal government furnishing eight millions.

This resolution, sponsored by Sen. Frank Whittemore, Akron, the Republican whip, "deeply de-

Village Alters Details To Satisfy New Set-up

ASHVILLE, March 19—An amended sewer grant resolution requesting funds not to exceed $12,000 was passed by council at a special meeting.

In the original set-up the government had intended to purchase the $40,000 sewage assessment

bonds but after the special election last November, in which general obligation bonds in the sum of $32,000 were substituted and approved, the bonds were sold to the Teachers' Retirement association, but not before council had secured the written assurance that the government would allow the grant as originally promised.

The passage of this last resolution was to cure the defect in grant legislation.

The village has received partial grant funds in the sum of $10,252.54 on first requisition on water works projects totaling $66,000.

Bartling & Son have practically completed the water mains and expect to have all services installed April 1.

Work at the pump site is about finished, the only work remaining explored the fact that the governor of Ohio and the national government are engaged in a controversy over administering and providing relief to a million or more people in Ohio.

Concurrence of the lower house in the two prevailing Senate resolutions on relief was expected to be voted this afternoon.

While prolonged applause from the gallery and the Democrats frequently interrupted Governor Davey's explanation of his row with Hopkins, Republicans branded it "no explanation at all."

"It was but a repetition of what we read in the newspapers before the charges made by Hopkins," said Sen. Gingham, Columbus Republican. "When we analyze Davey's speech we find nothing but a general denial of those charges."

Rep. Robert F. Kaser, Sidney, an administration Democrat, sided with the governor.

"I think Hopkins is taking advantage of President Roosevelt's confidence in him," said Kaser. "Hopkins has outlived his usefulness. Davey had nothing to do with any of the incidents cited by Hopkins who is playing politics and I think an investigation will show him in his true light."

"Base and foul character assassin" was the epithet Davey hurled at Hopkins. Referring to the libel suit, the governor said:

"I was the people of Ohio and of the nation to know the truth, and the quicker the better. If and when this man, who is guilty of criminal libel, goes to trial, there will be a wave of popular indignation against his nefarious and cowardly action. American people resent foul tactics."

Administration, Alarmed Over NIRA Fate, Offers Concessions to Save It

WASHINGTON—The inner Administration council has become much alarmed over the fate of the NIRA in Congress. Before the Senate Finance Committee began its hearings, Administration leaders were confident that by making some minor concessions renewal of the Act would be relatively easy.

"Assistant President" Richberg, particularly, was convinced this was all that had to be done.

After witnessing the outbursts of resentment and hostility that broke about his head in the committee and on the Senate floor, however, Democratic floor leaders rushed to the White House with warning that a real battle was on their hands.

Roosevelt was told that adoption of any NRA legislation was doubtful.

This, of course, would mean death to the Blue Eagle. Failure to renew its life by June 16 automatically ends its existence.

So to stem the rising tide of Senatorial opposition, Senator Pat Harrison secretly proposed to the Progressive block that they draw up a compromise bill.

"You strip the NRA of what you don't want," he said, "I am pretty sure we can get together."

"What about an anti-monopoly provision?" was demanded.

"Get together with Richberg," airily replied Pat. "You can work that out with him."

"We will work out nothing with Richberg," was the sharp rejoinder. "We don't care to have anything to do with him on this issue or any other."

The Progressives are now waiting the Administration's next move.

Help Ireland

Philadelphia's rookie Representative Michael J. Stack had a brilliant idea recently. So he sat down and wrote Roosevelt the following letter:

"Dear Mr. President: I am one of those strange creatures, a Democratic Congressman from Philadelphia. I am also an old-country Irishman, and I think it would be a rare pleasure to be allowed to have some hand in picking the Minister to the Irish Free State.

"I am always 100 per cent with you when you are right.

"Faithfully yours, "Michael J. Stack."

F. D. R. declined Stack's offer of assistance, but he did invite him to "come up and see me some time."

The Philadelphia is having the reply framed so he can show it to the members of the 46th Ward Democratic Club.

Senate Speeches

The official reporters of the Senate, who transcribe the debate for the Congressional Record, have a shorthand speed of 250 words a minute. Average "take" is 180 words a minute.

Rhetorical Senator Ham Lewis of Illinois is most difficult to follow. He speaks rapidly, with involved phrases.

Others whose speech speed is over 200 words a minute are Bone of Washington, Clark of Missouri, Barkley of Kentucky, and Long of Louisiana.

Long is a difficult subject not only because of speed, but because of unusual hill-billy phrases he throws in, such as "There's something dead up the creek."

Two of the biggest men in the Senate are the most soft-spoken—Walsh of Massachusetts and Shipstead of Minnesota. Reporters are obliged to leave the front desk and sit close to them in order to hear.

Senators King of Utah and Johnson of California are conspicuous for use of polysyllables.

Real estate collection as of that date totaled $77,667.31; tangible property, $2,814.79, and classified tax, $2,644.01.

The date the real estate tax books will be closed is not yet determined. It is believed the books will remain open later than usual because preparation for collection of the sales tax made the property tax collection start later than usual.

Personal Deadline Near

Auditor Forrest Short warned, Tuesday, that personal tax books close April 1 with a 50 per cent penalty to be added after that date.

"Up to now," Short reported, "there have been 1,085 persons file personal tax blanks. This is about one-third of those who filed last year."

KARACHI, India, March 19—Religious riots flared today, resulting in 27 deaths, and injury to 97.

Police trying to halt the grim parade, were stoned, and the situation rapidly got out of control.

Troops were then summoned to quell the mob.

BETTING ODDS ON WAR LOWER

Offers of Lloyd's Two and One-half Times Lower Than 3 Months Ago

LONDON, March 19—War within a year is two and one-half times more likely today than it was before Germany announced open rearmament, Lloyd's is wagering.

Insurance brokers are quoting odds of ten to one against outbreak of war involving Britain in a year, and seven to one against war between France and Germany. Three months ago the respective odds were twenty-five to one and nineteen to one.

Lloyd's figures roughly that odds are seven to three that Britain will be drawn into a Franco-German war.

OHIO GOVERNOR MAY BE IMPEACHED IN RELIEF WAR

While the Ohio legislature met at Columbus to take action on federal charges of "political corruption" in the Ohio relief administration, possible impeachment of Gov. Martin L. Davey (3) was threatened. Shortly after Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins (2) had placed Charles C. Stillman (1) in charge of Ohio's relief, Governor Davey swore out a warrant for Hopkins' arrest, charging criminal libel. Other photos show Marc J. Grossman (4) Cleveland, Cuyahoga county relief chairman, who turned to the offensive when Governor Davey assertedly tried to inject politics into relief administration; Attorney General John W. Bricker (5) who prepared to impanel a special grand jury to investigate charges against the governor, and Lieut. Gov. Harold Mosier (6) who would become governor if Davey were ousted. Hopkins acted on Roosevelt's order.

HOUSE TO BALLOT ON VETERANS' BILL

WASHINGTON, Mar. 19—The $2,000,000,000 cash bonus fight was thrust before the House today with President Roosevelt virtually devoid of a spokesman.

The Vinson bonus bill was to be called up less than 24 hours after Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, emerged from the White House with a prediction Mr. Roosevelt would veto either the Vinson or the Patman bills.

The situation was the most extraordinary witnessed in the history of Democratic house during this session. Leaders blandly ignored the White House attitude in the expectation that the house would vote three to one for a bonus bill, despite the president's opposition.

FRANKLIN AND LUCAS HANDED RELIEF CLAIMS

Hoskins Declines to Discuss Report Four Witnesses Summoned

INQUIRY IS VOTED

Bricker Barred From Conducting Probe

COLUMBUS, March 19—U. S. District Attorney Francis J. Canny announced today the affidavits from Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins, charging "political corruption" in connection with the administration of relief in Ohio, have been turned over to the prosecutors of Franklin and Lucas counties.

"I have nothing to say about the charges now," said Canny. "I will remain here until tomorrow and any investigation I may pursue will be entirely independent of action by the county prosecutors."

Subpoenas Reported

Franklin-co Prosecutor Donald Hoskins, who attended a conference of Canny and Attorney General John W. Bricker, refused to discuss a report that subpoenas have been issued for four persons to appear before the grand jury.

Mdve of Gingham Loses in Senate

COLUMBUS, Mar. 19—Democrat authority by the Ohio Senate to call his own grand jury investigation, Attorney General John W. Bricker today considered turning over to individual county prosecutors to handle as they see fit affidavits in support of serious charges made by Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins against the Davey campaign committee.

"These charges, already being sifted by the U. S. district attorney here for possible violation of federal laws, allege a 'shake down' of individuals and firms selling goods to the Ohio relief organization. Hopkins has taken over complete control of relief activities in this state."

While the Ohio attorney general cannot conduct a grand jury probe himself without authorization from the governor or legislature, his advisers pointed out there is nothing to restrain him from turning the affidavits from Hopkins over to county prosecutors to act upon as they see fit.

Gingher Defeated

The Democratic-controlled Senate voted down, 16 to 12, a resolution by Sen. Paul Gingher (R) of Columbus, for an investigation by the attorney general, after Governor Davey appeared before a joint session of the legislature "to give the people of Ohio and the nation the truth" after his battle with Hopkins.

Custer, who is located in Columbus, was assigned with Deputy Marshal Forbes Lammiman, to go to relief headquarters, now in charge of Charles C. Stillman, to guard the records kept there. They were sent to Stillman's office when it was reported Governor Davey intended to cause the national guard to evict Stillman from his office.

Lammiman said "We went there on reports that an attempt might be made to carry away federal records. We were there to enter a vigorous protest in such event."

A WARM WINTER

IN THE FILES of the United States weather bureau at Washington the winter of 1934-35 is at an end. For it seems the bureau, besides giving us the data on the weather before and after its arrival, likewise charts the seasons according to its own notions. Official winter in the bureau's calendar is December, January and February and even if the winds blow cold and the snow comes down in March, it's spring.

This being spring in the weather bureau, at least, its experts can look backward upon departed winter and tell us what it was like. It turned out to be a very mild winter in almost all the United States.
Between 85 and 90 per cent of the country had a winter warmer than normal. The small portion in the northeast that was colder than normal was not so cold as in the previous winter.

Some prophets who had based forecasts of a cold winter on movements of air masses were in for disappointment, for the masses actually brought warm weather. Cold polar air moved southward by way of Hudson bay over eastern Canada and centered over the northeastern United States. Turning clockwise, this mass helped to maintain prevailing winds from a southerly direction over the rest of the country, sweeping up warm tropical air from the Gulf of Mexico.

Moreover, according to the weather bureau there has been a remarkable trend to warm winters in the United States since the winter of 1917-18. Fifteen of these seventeen winters have been warmer than normal, when the country as a whole is considered, and about half of the fifteen show plus departures of temperature for nearly all sections of the country.

THE RELIEF ROLL

WERE the eight million inhabitants of the six New England states and the thirteen million inhabitants of New York to be receiving federal aid they would still be about one million less than the number the country over now on the relief rolls. The latest estimate places it in excess of twenty-two millions, or about one-sixth of the population of the country.

It is an aid to understanding of the meaning of the figures to picture the recipients of aid as brought together in one part of the land. Were they to take possession of the city of New York, only about one-third of them could find shelter there. This great army of the needy is three times as great as the population of New England.

Such is the story that comes from Washington as it is told in numbers of human units. What it means in dollars and cents is indicated by the statement that the cost of caring for these people calls for an expenditure of $5,000,000 a day. To measure it in terms of humiliation loss of ambition, and, perhaps, in even more serious ways, is a task no mere statistician may accomplish, and one that will await the longer view of the historian.

CONGRESS IN TRAINING

IT IS THE considered opinion of Representative James Mead of New York, with reference to the setting up of physical training equipment in the house quarters at Washington, that "our legislators need a gymnasium to keep themselves fit." Accordingly a good number of house members shortly will be in training with table-tennis, volley ball, wall exercisers, punching bags and other devices.

There is no suggestion in this as to what the house is preparing to do to the senate, or what the latter would do to the lower chamber if it could only find time for the physical development. The encounters of the two branches of congress will remain confined to another sphere, with the continued hope of the country that everything will be in the open, that rules will be enforced, fouls will be called and scores accurately tabulated in the public interest.

We pay ourselves a poor compliment when we lose heart because of the discovery that great minds are no smarter than ours.

GYPSY GIRL

READ THIS FIRST:

Consuelo, a beautiful gypsy girl who longs to dance with all the world at her feet, is loved by the Dummy, a deaf mute, and Marcu.
She despises her mother, Antea, but is fond of her father, Girtza. Marcu tempts Consuelo with a huge diamond and she agrees to marry him.
Just as Girtza notices Consuelo's ring, which she tells him she has stolen, the sheriff appears. He proceeds to haul the gypsies into court but Consuelo is no longer securing the ring. When the judge's wife and another woman search her, Consuelo fights them savagely. Meantime Marcu comes into the courtroom and announces he bought the ring. The town jeweler is summoned and admits selling Marcu the ring for $12.60. He had been instructed to wear his glasses when he made the sale. Consuelo thinks Marcu tricked her about the ring's value and is bitter. She tempts the Dummy during a dance, he kisses her and Marcu appears. He tears Consuelo from the Dummy's arms and challenges him to wrestle for the girl.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 12

CONSUELO stood to the side. She did not urge on either one or the other. There was no exultation in her heart that they were fighting over her. Did they not know that she would have neither of them?
Did they not know that she would never marry, that she was going to dance; that men no longer mattered;
that only the palace on the top of the high hill counted; that life would never be complete until she had danced in the palace? Attainment! That would not cheat her as men had done. Attainment! That was the only real thing.

"Petru," she called, her voice loud above the noise of the cheers and the fight, "Petru, play again on your flute. I will dance."

Petru put his flute to his lips and began to play.
Ah, what new thing was this? The gypsies looked at the girl. Why was she dancing as if she cared not at all that two men were fighting for her? At first they divided their attention and then slowly again the circle drew about her, for what gypsy would dance and sing to the sound of a flute? But at what what gypsy can resist a good wrestling match? Yet it was true that men could wrestle any time and it was not true that anyone else could dance as this girl was dancing.

And she was clapping their hands and beating the feet to the drum and the circle closed about her and the two men were left on the outside of the circle. No one was watching them and it did not matter which one outwrestled the other.

The girl noticed the closed circle and she turned and looked at the men and she saw that they had had never danced before. But the laugh faded and unknowingly she was a little sad that dancing had won this contest. When finally she had finished she ran away fast and went alone into the woods and flung herself upon the ground and buried her face in her hands and cried. It was hard to forget the Dummy's arms around her.

Hot summer days came in monotonous procession and it was still the talk of the camp how Consuelo had said that she would marry the Dummy and had taken all honor from their fight. Afterwards no one could understand why he had watched her dancing instead of a good matched contest between well muscled men.

And it made Marcu's blood boil and he wanted to lay his hands on her and he said to himself, "I will again. 'Now is the time to tell you I love you.'"

But the Dummy laughed to himself. The fight had been madness on his part, but it pleased him the way the men patted him on the back now and how Marcu turned her saucy some flowers in appreciation of her kindness when I was low in spirit and in health in the hospital. All I told the doctor was that his bill was outrageous, and said nothing to the good padre who called on me.

Do we appreciate and do we show any gratitude for the things we have at our command, such as the teachers in the Sunday schools, the teachers in the public schools, a splendidly-equipped hospital, the doctors and nurses who readily answer the summons when we are ill, ministers of the gospel who are always ready to render spiritual help, and many other things that we are privileged to have every day in the year?

I conscientiously asked myself those questions and here's my answer: Yes, I appreciate them all very much when I stop to think and am grateful for the opportunity of living in a progressive community. But I just take all these good things as a matter of course and neglect to tell anyone just how grateful I am. I'm too busy to take the time to tell the Sunday school teacher or the public school teacher that I'm grateful for their personal interest in Johnny and Mary. I forgot to send the nurse

"You like your fortunes told?"
Dumny's arm and pointed.
"I'll make money there," and motioning the youth to wait for her,
she walked toward the men.

As she came close her white teeth flashed in a smile. She stepped into the shade.
"You like your fortunes told?" she asked, eyes sparkling.
"Well, look, what's here?"
"A gypsy!"
"What can you tell us?"
"I tell the past, the future, your loves, your hates—I tell all."
"Just like a woman. Never could keep a secret."

She stepped closer to the man who spoke.
"Cross my palm with silver, white man, and I shall tell you all that you want to know." Smiling up at him.

"Money first, always money first.
That proves my point that women are all the same."

"Go on, Doug, be a sport."
Doug took a dollar from his pocket and held it out to the gypsy.
"Now listen here, young lady," he said, "I want you to tell me a lot of good things, but don't you dare tell me I'm going to fall in love—the last time cost me plenty."

The slim fingers took the dollar eagerly and touched the outstretched hand.
"Wheel! Don't do that!" Doug drew his hand away. "I'm frightfully afraid of women," he told her.
"I can't tell your fortune unless I hold your hand."

Doug put his hands behind him.
"You know I don't think I'd be so afraid of you if I had a little kiss first."

"This isn't New York," one of the others admonished.
"Well, I've never yet met a girl who refused to kiss me," Doug admitted blandly, "after I've given her money—not just a dollar, perhaps—but then a dollar is a dollar."

"Listen, girls, don't pay a bit of attention to him. Why don't you tell my fortune? I won't ask for a kiss first," the man stressed the last word.

"You forgetting your wife, Bill?"
One of the trio, a tall, gray haired man, spoke.

"Go on, just because you're the only lucky one, don't rub it in," Bill retorted.

"Well, then, if I'm the lucky one,
I ought to have mine told first. How about it, gypsy girl?"
"My name's Consuelo," she offered.
"All right, Consuelo, will you tell mine?"

Editorial Of The Day
CRIME DOES NOT PAY
(Columbus Dispatch)
This oft-heard assertion is borne out every day and may be seen in hundreds of ways. One may even step over to the institution in W.
Spring St. and see some 4000 examples of it there. Yet, seemingly, there is one born every minute who thinks he is especially endowed to beat the rule.

In an effort to impress the everlasting verity upon as widespread an audience as possible MGM pictures is producing a series of shorts, each built around an actual crime. Each picture will show that the cards are stacked against the criminal from the start.

The first of this series is a picture with a vital, compelling message. Such pictures aren't exactly pleasant in their complete sense,
nor do they have happy endings,
but they pack a wallop convincing
as an upturn from Dempsey.

The youth who has illusions about the glamour of crime will get a sermon which will help to keep him on the straight road. MGM is making a worthy contribution to a fine cause in helping put across the fact that crime does not pay.

Blood Pressure Variations
Resemble Graph of Stocks

By LOGAN CLENEDENING, M. D.

WE SPOKE THE other day of the mistake that patients frequently make in regarding a fall of blood pressure as necessarily a sign of improvement or a rise of blood pressure as necessarily a sign that the condition is getting worse. It is a mistake to regard blood pressure as a fixed thing. The blood pressure varies in many different ways. In fact, it is constantly fluctuating and a chart of a person's blood pressure hour by hour through the day, every day in the year, would look like the chart of the range of an active stock on the stock market.

The most notable variation in blood pressure is that in the course of life, from infancy to old age. The general trend of blood pressure is to go up as age advances. In children of the age of 2, blood pressure is usually 75 to 90. In a mature individual of 20 it is usually about 120. From then on, it is liable to increase gradually, about 10 points for every decade of life, until it reaches 150 to 160 at about the age of 60, when it is likely to decline.

Variations of pressure during the day show in a healthy person, that the systolic pressure in the morning is about 100, rises to about 120 at 9 o'clock, falls a little during the forenoon, rises again in the early afternoon, and if a quiet evening is spent,
it falls slowly to about 100, remaining that way through the night.

Posture has some influence on blood pressure and is lower in the recumbent position.

Unaccustomed rest has long been known to be a reducer of blood pressure. Thus laboring men with pressures between 160 and 200, on entrance to the hospital showed a considerable fall after a few days in bed.

Meals influence blood pressure to some extent. After a meal, independent of the time of day, there is a constant fall of pressure.

If one were to take 1,000 people and take their blood pressure every day at the same time, throughout the year, and make a graph of the average of these pressures, it would be found that it was highest about the first of January, became appre-ciably lower—10 to 15 points—by June, stayed that way through the summer, and then gradually rose through the fall again to the high point in January. The lesson of this, according to an eminent physician of my acquaintance, is always to start treating your high blood pressure patients on the first of January and to dismiss them on the first of August.

We see from all these things that it is entirely an erroneous idea to regard blood pressure as a fixed thing.
It is far more changeable than the temperature of the body or than the pulse rate.

Mrs. Adrian Yates Elected President of Monday Club

Mrs. Adrian Yates, E. Main-st., is the new president of the Monday club for the coming year. She and her corps of officers were elected at the club's regular session, last evening.

Other officers, named during the session in charge of the president, Mrs. Hildebrand Jones, were Mrs. Fred Griner, first vice president; Mrs. R. F. Lilly, second vice president; Miss Margaret Rooney, recording secretary; Mrs. Barton Deming, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, treasurer; Miss Mary Wilder, librarian; and Miss Alice Ada May, Miss Gretchen Moeller and Mrs. G. H. Adkins, program committee.

The nominating committee, which presented the slate of officers, was comprised of Mrs. T. W. Brown, Mrs. Orion King and Miss Jeannette Rowe.

Following the business meeting, the program was in charge of Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, chairman of the psychology division. It consisted of two papers. The first one was on "Personality and Social Adjustment" and was given by Mrs. Anna Chandler.

She said in part: "People differ, not only in intelligence and efficiency but in an intangible something referred to as a personality. Personality refers not to any particular sort of activity, but to an attractive something which pervades one's every contact with people. Personality then, is the quality of one's total behavior."

"One's physique, biological make-up, intelligence, limitations and temperament all contribute to one's personality. Environment may obstruct or aid the development of one's personality."

"One must adjust oneself to the social environment with its demands and its oppositions, or adjust the environment to oneself. The development of one's personality consists largely, in a series of adjustments. The more intelligent person demands more of environment and more is demanded of the person. A person of limited intelligence is likely to be lacking in tact and sympathy because he does not understand what is going on in a social group and cannot put himself in their place."

Girl Scout News

Girl Scout Troop No. 4 held its regular meeting on March 15 in the basement of the Presbyterian Church. We opened with the pledge and songs. During business session we discussed the possibilities of gardening as an out-door activity for the summer. After a game, we went to patrol corners where we practiced progress work. Two girls, who had finished their mosaic work, were allowed to start on table-pad weaving.

Our two older patrols planned a hike for next Thursday. In closing, we played "Orchestra" and then sang Brahms' Lullabye and Taps. Eleanor McDill and Jean Kenney were our guests at this meeting.

A shirtwaist effect for the young girl is both striking and appropriate - especially when the fashion is introduced by means of a clever yoke. The flaring sleeves with a pleat from the shoulder and the immaculate little collar typify Marian Martin's excellent taste in dressing the young. An inverted pleat down the center back gives dash to the rear appearance and plenty of room for the most harmonious scarum. It's the type of frock that is singularly attractive in dainty cotton prints, in gingham or broad-cloth stripes or plaids. Challis too, is suggested. The collar may contrast or be made of self-fabric.

Pattern 9082 may be ordered only in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 requires 2 7-8 yards 36 inch fabric and 1-4 yards contrasting. Before we know it Easter will be here. If you want to look your best on that day, let these crocheted accessories be part of your ensemble. This crocheted hat is most becoming - it is softly draped and is that comfortable type of hat that goes with so many things. The purse - a nice, roomy one - is crocheted in a puffing effect that looks much like quilting. The purse is very smart and could be made in darker colors for the Spring suit and in light shades for Summer. And we all know how vital a part of our costume the summer purse is!

ATHLETIC CHIEF ASSAILED

THREATENED BOLT OF AKRON

SCHOOLS SEEN AS DANGEROUS

COLUMBUS, March 19.—With charges of "political chicanery" laid at his door, H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio High School Athletic Association, today attempted to pour oil on the troubled waters he stirred up yesterday when he refused to allow some of the eight Class A high school basketball finalists to "seed" positions in the statewide tournament here this week-end.

As a result, Akron North and Akron West were paired to meet in the first round, making the third time in the last three years that teams from the Akron district had been forced to meet in first round games and eliminate each other. Immediate resentment was expressed by the Akron coaches and the cry of "political chicanery" was raised by principals of five high schools there.

To Enter Protest
The quintet of school officials, J. W. Flood of Akron West, Hugh R. Smith of Akron North, A. D. Ladd of Akron Garfield, C. J. Bowman of Akron Butcher and J. Ray Stine of Akron Central, were to call on Townsend today to make a formal protest, and threaten to withdraw not only from the tournament but from the high school association.

However, Townsend already had moved to right the condition. He communicated with Lima South and Columbus Central, who were paired to meet each other to determine whether they would trade places with an Akron team in the first round. However, in event of winning the two Akron teams would meet each other in the second round, so only a one round advantage would be gained.

It was also doubtful whether Lima South or Columbus Central would care to take the chances of cutting their tournament life by meeting an Akron team in the first round. Townsend said he expected definite word from South and Central before this afternoon. To the charges of political chicanery within the high school association, Townsend said:

"That's very interesting but I don't believe I'll comment."
He, however, said he would "be pleased to meet with the Akron school officials."

Townsend said the present situation was "regrettable." It resulted when one of the Lima teams moved to "seed" cities with two teams represented despite previous instructions that no "seeding" would be allowed. Four schools, those from Akron and Lima, voted in favor of "seeding" while three others opposed it. Dayton Stivers' representative was absent and Townsend voted for that school—against "seeding." It deadlocked the issue and then Townsend ruled that there would be no "seeding," in effect casting two votes. The fact that Stivers later approved Townsend's vote for it failed to detract from the dispute.

Express Sorrow
"I'm sorry about the whole thing," explained Townsend. "But I believe I was right. In the first place, I shouldn't have allowed any discussion of 'seeding' at all, inasmuch as the rules clearly stipulated that there would be no 'seeding.' In the second place, I shouldn't have tried to 'carry the ball' for Dayton Stivers."

Townsend promised that the boards of control of the association would consider plans for a different method of pairing teams at its meeting next Saturday but admitted that he was not sure.

Sox Rookie Is Hot

Ray Radcliff

Gift to the major leagues from Okla. Okla. Ray Radcliff, White Sox hopeful, is regarded as most likely to stick. The right-hander who hit 335 for Louisville last year, has been going strong in the Sox training camp at Pasadena, Cal.

mitted that "it was like locking the barn after the horse was stolen."

Russ Reichley, coach of Akron West, was of the same opinion, saying more brusquely:

"That won't help any this year!" Townsend probably was the coolest figure involved in the dispute. He refused to be rushed into making any policy-making statements although he admitted that there was a possibility that no compromise could be worked out.

"In that event," he said, "it is the privilege of the Akron teams to withdraw if they decide to do so."
If the Akron schools bolt the association, there was the probability that other schools would follow suit and Townsend who built the organization up to a membership of more than 1,000 schools during the 10 years he has been at its helm would have a "man sized" revolt on their hands. From the attitude of the Akron schools, also developed the possibility that a movement may be started to unseat the commissioner.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

What Of "Seeding"?

The advisability of "seeding" teams in a basketball tournament has never before been proved any more than in the last month; we have in mind the county tournament and, more recently, the state tournament. * * * As a result of failure to "seed" teams in the latter meet two Akron schools, both with strong quintets, are forced to meet in the first round just as Ashville and New Holland, undoubtedly the best drawing cards in the county, were thrown against each other in the first round of the county meet * * *

Too Much Townsend

Much disgust has been expressed by Akron school heads as a result of the draw and threats have been heard that "We will withdraw." We don't believe the schools, North and West, will quit the tournament but just what might result can easily be seen * * * The North coach was very angry at the tactics of "Kingfish" H. R. Townsend of the state athletic commission who cast the two deciding votes on the "seeding" question. The vote stood 4 to 3 for "seeding" with Dayton Stivers having no representative at the meeting. Townsend voted for Stivers and balloted against "seeding" then as athletic commissioner he was enabled to cast a ballot to break the tie resulting in the vote against "seeding" * * *

Benefit For "Tubby"

Old classmates, other members of the Muskingum alumni and many friends took part in a recent "benefit" evening of sports given for George "Tubby" Vlerebone, former Circleville high school athlete, who is confined in a Starko sanatorium for probably a year's treatment. He became afflicted while coaching at Dalton high school—Basketball games were conducted between two all-star alumni squads and the present freshman and varsity teams—Vlerebone, son of Mrs. Channing Vlerebone, E. Main-st., is a nine letter-man at Muskingum having three years in each basketball, football and track * * *

Baseballers Practice

The high school baseball squad under the direction of Coach Pete Herberholz had its first "official" workout on the utilities field Monday evening. The battery-men have been working out for quite a while but the infielders and outfielders have just started their chores.

IRISH GRAPPLER CLIMBS LADDER

NEW YORK, March 19.—A new heavyweight wrestling champion loomed as a possibility in the near future here today.
Dan O'Mahoney, big Irish bone-crushing importation, held the wrestling spot-light today after his quick victory over former champ Jim Browning at Madison Square Garden last night. Browning was pinned in 22 minutes, 31 seconds.
O'Mahoney made use of his vaunted "Irish Whip" to down his rival, putting behind him another rung of the ladder leading to a bout with Champion, Jim London, the "perfect Greek."

APPENDICITIS HITS INDIAN HOPES

Roy Hughes

Bill Knickerbocker

With star Shortstop Bill Knickerbocker recovering from an appendicitis operation in New Orleans, pennant chances of the Cleveland Indians are regarded as slim unless Roy Hughes, left,

sensational New Orleans recruit, can fill in for Knick. Hughes, 22-year-old Cincinnati sandlot product, has shown up well in training camp, and is one of the fastest men on the squad.

CHAMPION TO FACE GERMAN

Willing to Go to Europe Providing $300,000 Is Placed In U. S. Bank

BERLIN, March 19.—Europe may finally witness its first heavyweight championship fight in recent boxing history next August if plans of Walter Rothenberg, Hamburg promoter, who staged the Max Schmeling-Steve Hamas battle materialize.

Rothenberg announced today that Max Baer had accepted his $300,000 offer to risk his crown against Schmeling, probably in London. Paris is also being considered as a site, but it is felt that Berlin would be impractical as a battlefield because of the difficulty in getting $300,000 in foreign exchange out of the country.

Baer wants his $300,000 posted in an American bank before the fight.

His participation is contingent on his beating the winner of the Madison Square Garden tournament in a scheduled June fight.

BAA NOTES

By GILSON WRIGHT

For the first time in several years, the Buckeye conference will decide championships in tennis and golf this spring.
Miami, Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan each will participate in both sports, while Ohio university will have a tennis team but no golf team. Marshall will not be represented in either sport.

Cincinnati university's baseball team will make a southern jaunt this spring. The Bearcats, after opening with a Buckeye opponent, Ohio Wesleyan, on April 13 will make a five-day trip into Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia. Georgia Tech is one of the teams to be met.

While Coach Frank Wilton is busy with his spring football practice, Len Fertig, former Miami grid and baseball star, will take the Miami diamond squad through its early paces. Wilton will direct the team after the spring grid program is ended.

Dana King's sudden resignation as head gridiron coach at Cincinnati comes unexpectedly in Buckeye circles. Even the Cincinnati Bearcat, student newspaper, is puzzled at the prospect of a coach resigning his position just after he had led his team to the championship, as King did in football last fall. His successor will be Russ Cohen, formerly an assistant at Vanderbilt.

Down at Marshall college they're singing the praises of Carroll Coleman, sophomore who is slated to fill the shoes of "Lefty" Belcher as the Ford's ace pitcher this spring. Marshall won the Buckeye championship in baseball a year ago.

MIZE'S HIT WINS

TAMPA, Fla., Mar. 19.—The Cincinnati Reds today held a 6 to 5 victory over the Toronto club after an exhibition game but the winning run was not scored until two were out in the last half of the ninth. However, big Johnny Mize poled a stinging liner over second to end the game. The Reds loaned Toronto two pitchers for the game, Lee Grissom and Junie Barnes, the latter with a puzzling underhand delivery even though he is a southpaw.

TREGO CANDIDATE FOR BEREA BOOTS

COLUMBUS, March 19.—Capital university today had five candidates for the "Berea Boots," symbolic of athletic prowess at the local school.

Dana Swinchart, three-sport letterman from Glenford, will make the award soon. Candidates are Fred Heischman of New Albany, Paul Schellase of Youngstown, Ellsworth Trego of Commercial Point, Paul Long of Waldo and Eldon Cooperdier of Petersburg, W. Va.

The "Berea Boots" have been handed down to the best athlete of the junior class since they were first discovered in the Berea oil field in 1914.

GOTHAM TO SEE DETROIT NEGRO

NEW YORK, Mar. 19.—Joe Louis, negro heavyweight who has come along at a rapid pace since capturing the amateur 175-pound title last April, will be paraded in action before local fans three times next summer, it was learned today. The assurance comes from Mike Jacobs, who disclosed he has signed the sensational newcomer for a trio of bouts in the metropolis, against available opponents who will venture into the ring with Louis is not known now.

LEFTY LEE FIND

NEW ORLEANS, Mar. 19.—Walter Johnson, manager of the Cleveland Indians and himself one of the greatest pitchers in baseball's history, gloated today over the performance of two of his hurlers, Clint Brown and Thornton Lee who held the Pelicans to one hit in nine frames recently. After watching the moundmen work out yesterday, the word went the rounds that Johnson was counting on Lee to win between 15 and 20 games for the Tribe this season.

Johnson once delivered himself of a record-breaker:

"Mr. President, during the last year, belittled from the hustings, flintnabulated over the radio, ululated from a servile press, there has come to us the oburguration of a recalcitrant minority."

Rescuer

The President's vigorously worded message in behalf of the utility holding corporation bill came at a psychological moment.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

FORCING THE STRONG HAND TO LEAD

REQUENTLY there is an advantage in having the opening lead come up to tenaces, instead of going through them. When partners have both shown strength, as West and his partner had done with today's hand, there may be an advantage in having the single strong opponent make the opening lead, up to the lesser strength of the second member of the declaring side. This probably accounts for West's unusual bidding.

Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; West doubled; East, 2-Clubs, his lowest three-card suit, as he had to respond and could not bid 1-No Trump on so dubious a heart stop as

♠ K J 9 6 4
♥ 9
♦ 9 8 6 3
♣ 10 4 3

♠ 8 5 2
♥ J 5 3 2
♦ A 7 5
♣ A 9 8

♠ A Q J 5
♥ A Q 10 7
♦ K Q 7 6 4
♣ Q 7 6 2

4 to a J; South passed, hoping that West might shift into spades; West, 3-Diamonds, forcing another call from East; East, 4-Diamonds; West, 5-Clubs, expecting that his partner would at least four trumps. As expected, the opening lead was the K of hearts. Dummy's Ace won. Three rounds of trumps, leaving dummy with a long trump. Not until then did West realize that his partner had held only three clubs, and that it was fortunate for the declaring side that opposing trumps had been divided 3-3.

East's K of clubs won the fourth trick played, taking his last trump. He led his lowest heart. South's Q won the trick. When North showed out South knew that the declarer held the missing J of hearts, but he might not hold the missing Ace of diamonds. South took the second defensive trick for his side with the Ace of spades, then dummy was put in with a heart, as the exposed hand had nothing left to lead except diamonds or the long trump.

The 2 of diamonds was led from dummy and the declarer was in with the missing Ace of diamonds, capturing South's lone Q. If South had not been wise enough to take his Ace of spades when in, dummy's lone spade would have been discarded on the declarer's J of hearts, giving the declaring side a small slam, without mentioning the remarks which North might have addressed to his partner had the latter allowed East to make a small slam against an opening bid.

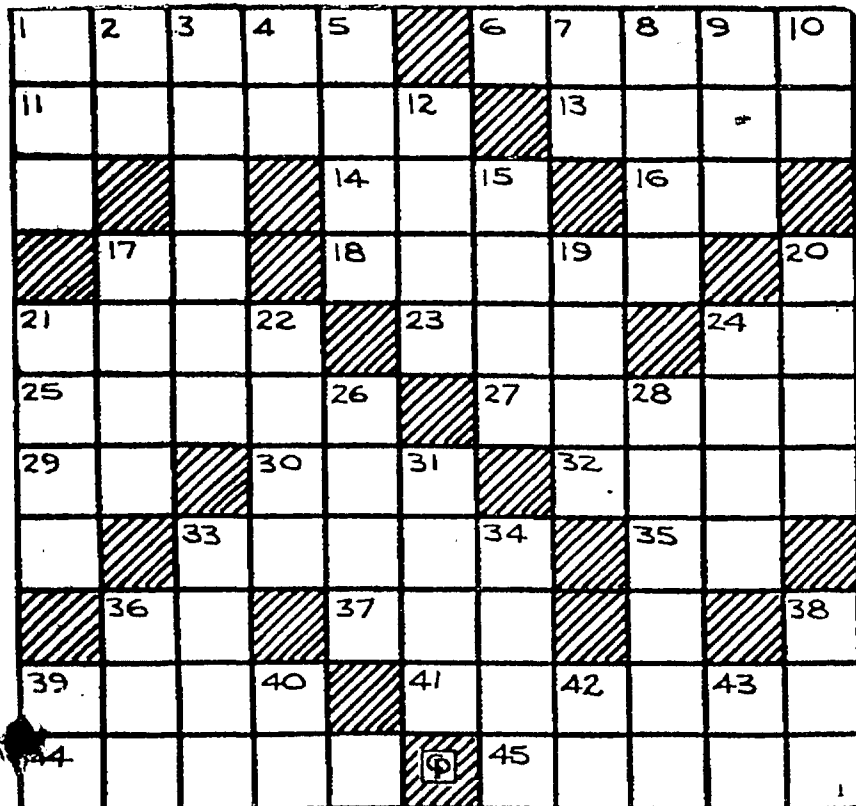

Had North and South known that opponents were going to fulfill a game contract at a minor suit, it would have paid well to bid 5-Spades, as neither side was vulnerable. Going down three tricks doubled, costing 450 points, would have been less expensive than giving opponents a game.

FOUR STATES FACING 'FED' RELIEF PROBE

Funds Withheld From Idaho, Maryland, Tennessee; "Chiselers" Hit

WASHINGTON, March 19.—A concentrated drive on relief "chiselers" and on possible graft and corruption in connection with handling of federal relief funds was under way today following the clash between Federal Emergency Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio.

While Hopkins maintained a strict silence on Gov. Davey's warrant charging him with criminal libel, it was learned that federal investigators are at work in other states, checking on "chiseling" and trying to determine whether there is evidence of corruption.

Funds have been withheld from Idaho, Maryland and Tennessee because their legislatures have not made provision for the state to assume what Hopkins considers a fair share of the relief burden.

But all the other states including Ohio, have received their March allotments.

Attacks 'Chiselers'
A drive by Pennsylvania authorities against alleged "chiselers" on relief rolls has been started, centering in Pittsburgh. Though it is a state action, the federal administration is keeping a close eye on the situation. Pennsylvania's relief load jumped from $18,894,738 in December to $22,500,000 in January, approximately $23,000,000 in February, and slightly under that figure in March.

An investigator for the FERA assigned to western states has been in Idaho the last few days.

There Gov. C. Ben Ross was told by Administrator Hopkins, in a letter two months ago, that Idaho must take steps to assume a share of the relief burden. The FERA has allotted more than $4,000,000 to Idaho in the last year, while the state had provided only approximately $250,000, officials stated. The legislature adjourned recently without taking any steps for the state to provide its quota of relief, approximately one-fourth of the monthly amount. Idaho's relief load in January was $1,065,118.

In the Ohio controversy, Hopkins' aides repeated that any prosecution of the charges of corruption against Gov. Davey's campaign lieutenants was up to the state and county prosecutors.

Hopkins said the evidence collected by his investigators was forwarded to Attorney General John W. Bricker and to the county prosecutors of Franklin and Lucas counties, of which Columbus and Toledo are the county seats.

Relief List Jumps
The number of persons on relief in Ohio increased from 1,192,509 in December to 1,234,363 in January, the latest figures available at relief headquarters.

GEN. JOHNSON TO "ABOLISH" HUEY, FATHER

Wants All On Record Before Getting Rid of Enemies of Air-Waves

CHICAGO, March 19.—General Hugh S. Johnson, late of the NRA, will crack down with finality on the "lies and insinuations" of Senator Huey S. Long and the Rev. Fr. Charles E. Coughlin, but at present the general said he is biding his time.

Veering momentarily from a polite and pedantic speech at Northwestern university last night, Gen. Johnson promised, at a future date, once and for all, to "dispose" of his arch-enemies of the air waves, whom he broadly termed not really worthy of his title.

"I have yet to answer their lies and insinuations because I want them to put it all on record," he said. "They are working toward the sound of the wrong guns and trying to lead after them every faint or disappointed heart that they can delude or inflame by their political hypocrisy."

Asked what "we can do to get rid of Huey Long," Johnson replied:

"Laugh him to death."

In answering questions from the audience, Gen. Johnson insisted that his recent speech assailing Father Coughlin was not inspired by President Roosevelt.

Administration of the National Recovery act, and not exactly NRA itself, "is dead as a doornail," the general declared, and as it stands NRA should be abandoned.

libel action against Hopkins and dared him to come to Ohio to stand trial, flayed the federal relief administrator as "a base and evil character assassin who has done me grave and unforgivable wrong."

After defeating the Gingham resolution, the Senate adopted another offered from the Democrats for a legislative investigation of all phases of Ohio's bitter relief controversy.

Davey, in his address to the joint session, urged an investigation "by an impartial counsel," promising full cooperation "in the conduct of this investigation with no reservation of a situation that will shock the people of Ohio."

While Bricker as attorney general is by statute the legal counsel of the governor, he is a Republican and mentioned as the potential Republican opponent of Davey in the next election. Davey has made a practice of seeking legal advice from counsel other than the attorney general.

Willingness of the Democrats to satisfy the Republican senate minority, who shouted "white wash" when their amendment to make the investigating committee bipartisan was voted down. Six Democrats and four Republicans will comprise the committee.

But Democrats joined Republicans in the adoption of a resolution giving assurance to the federal government that Ohio will raise its share of relief revenue promptly. It is two million dollars a month, the federal government furnishing eight millions.

This resolution, sponsored by Sen. Frank Whitmore, Akron, the Republican whip, "deeply de-explored the fact that the governor of Ohio and the national government are engaged in a controversy over administering and providing relief to a million or more people in Ohio.

Concurrence of the lower house in the two prevailing Senate resolutions on relief was expected to be voted this afternoon.

While prolonged applause from the gallery and the Democrats frequently interrupted Governor Davey's explanation of his row with Hopkins, Republicans branded it "no explanation at all."

"It was but a repetition of what we read in the newspapers before the charges made by Hopkins," said Sen. Gingham, Columbus Republican. "When we analyze Davey's speech we find nothing but a general denial of 'those charges.'"

Rep. Robert F. Kaser, Sidney, an administration Democrat, sided with the governor.

"I think Hopkins is taking advantage of President Roosevelt's confidence in him," said Kaser. "Hopkins has outlived his usefulness. Davey had nothing to do with any of the incidents cited by Hopkins who is playing politics and I think an investigation will show him in his true light."

"Base and foul character assassin" was the epithet Davey hurled at Hopkins. Referring to the libel suit, the governor said:

"I want the people of Ohio and of the nation to know the truth, and the quicker the better. If and when this man, who is guilty of criminal libel, goes to trial, there will be a wave of popular indignation against his nefarious and cowardly action. American people resent foul tactics."
